

Jana Jarvis
President
Oregon Trucking Association

Jana has over 20 years of public policy and management experience in both the corporate and trade association environment. In 2010 she established her own public policy firm specializing in issues around tax policy, land use, environmental quality, natural resources, real estate, manufacturing, and of course, transportation policy. Prior to that she served as Vice President of Public Policy for the Oregon Association of REALTORS® where she led them to unprecedented levels of grassroots participation and political fundraising.

In addition to her public policy work, her background includes a stint with a major manufacturer where her responsibilities included developing customer delivery expectations and driver protocols. When major customer issues arose, she often found the best solution to simply arrive with the driver on the next delivery to diffuse the situation! These experiences give her a deep respect for the trucking industry and the professionalism of drivers.

Although not an Oregonian by birth, she grew up in the Northwest and has lived here for over 35 years. Her husband is a native Oregonian and she has a married daughter in Portland and a son living too far away in Santa Monica, CA! She has an undergraduate degree in Business and a MBA from the University of Portland. She has won numerous awards but is most proud of the award she received during the 2009 legislative session from a former adversary for her work in the affordable housing industry.
